

FREE VOTER REGISTRATION CONCERT AT CARNEGIE MELLON UNIVERSITY

Vampire Weekend Headliner w/Local Supporting Bands
Saturday, October 4th, 2008

WHO: Declared as the “The Year’s Best New Band” by Spin Magazine in March 2008, Vampire Weekend has skyrocketed to fame in the last year and a half, setting the music world abuzz with their signature indie rock/afro-pop sound. Having toured with the likes of The Shins, Vampire Weekend has quickly gained national and international exposure and will be headlining the evening. Popular Pittsburgh local bands joining the lineup include the mellow, indie-pop group Lohio, indie-rockers Life In Bed, the punk-rock stylings of Dirty Faces, and upcoming local band Axelrod.

WHAT: Students for Barack Obama at Carnegie Mellon are having a free concert to ensure that everyone who can vote in the upcoming election is registered and if they are already registered, that their current registration is correct and up-to-date to prevent disenfranchisement at the polls.

Advance ticketing to avoid registration lines at the event are available at the following three locations:

Obama Headquarters at 213 Smithfield St., Monday-Friday 10am-9pm, Obama Oakland Office, 3516 Fifth Ave., Monday-Friday 10am-9pm, and Carnegie Mellon University in front of Doherty Hall, Monday-Friday 9am-4pm. No one will be denied if ineligible to vote.

WHERE: College of Fine Arts Lawn, Carnegie Mellon University, Oakland
WHEN: Saturday, October 4th, 4:00pm, all ages, free, and open to the public
